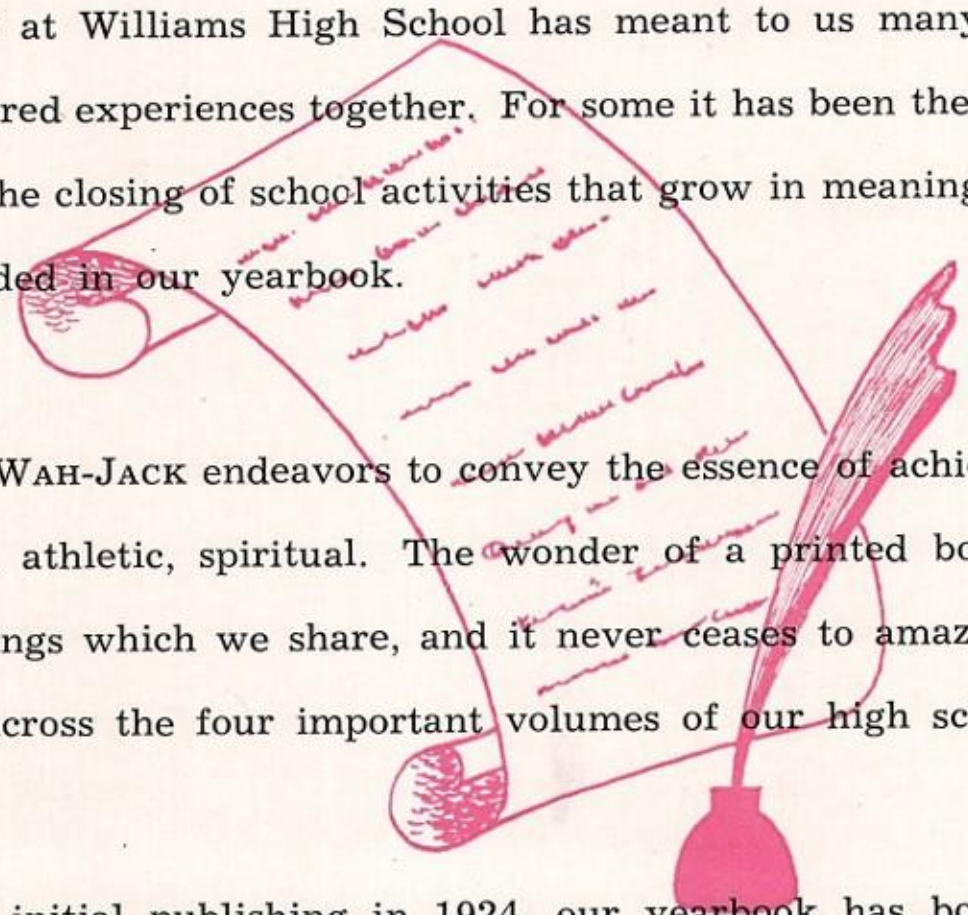
Foreword

"A good book is the best of friends, the same to-day and for ever"—TUPPER

This year at Williams High School has meant to us many things as we have shared experiences together. For some it has been the beginning; for others, the closing of school activities that grow in meaning and value when recorded in our yearbook.



Our DOE-WAH-JACK endeavors to convey the essence of achievements—educational, athletic, spiritual. The wonder of a printed book unfolds the happenings which we share, and it never ceases to amaze us as we look back across the four important volumes of our high school life.

From its initial publishing in 1924, our yearbook has borne a title derived from the Indian word meaning "the first." The editor of that early edition sought a name that would portray a distinct meaning through the years. When he noticed an old fashioned pot-bellied stove inscribed with the trademark, "Doe-Wah-Jack," he was inspired to use that title for the yearbook. Thus our book became the namesake of the little iron stove, portrayed on the cover of our DOE-WAH-JACK.

Efficiently operating our cafeteria, Mrs. Howerton is also responsible for the attractive and nourishing meals served each day.

Our secretaries keep a most efficient office, and with their smiling faces and understanding manner they make the path to the principal's office much smoother. Left, Mrs. June Coe; Right, Mrs. Iris Wobie.

Dear George,
My school life is almost over, but I will never forget you. I'll always have really been a big help to me. Everyday when I walk in Bible I look forward to your kidding. You are strong as an oak. I know you liked to beat on me but brother I'm still carrying the bruises. I will never forget you your ways. I think you are the greatest and I will always remember you no matter what. Please stay the way you are right now and keep the personality you have in life. You have the understanding to go far in life, and the kindness to go far in life. I hope our friendship will never cease. You are in my book.

Yours sincerely
Vickie

P.S. Maybe I'll be just one of the family some day. Be good. You deserve all that the world can offer.
Vicki
